

Biosketch

Keith R. Miller, M.D.

Dr. Miller is a native of Greencastle, Indiana, but has spent the last 15 years at the University of Louisville, where he completed his general surgical training in addition to critical care and trauma fellowships, prior to joining the faculty. Dr. Miller received his M.D. from Indiana University and completed his undergraduate work at DePauw University.

Dr. Miller is an Associate Professor of Surgery, Academic Advisory Dean and Associate Program Director of the General Surgery Program at the University of Louisville School of Medicine. He is also the Associate Trauma Medical Director in the Trauma and Critical Care Division and Director of Surgical Nutrition at University of Louisville Hospital, as well as Organ Donor Intensivist for the Kentucky Organ Donor Affiliates. Dr. Miller serves as faculty for the Nestle Nutrition Institute Clinical Nutrition Fellowship for Physicians.

He is author to several articles and book chapters. His research interests include critical care nutrition, shock resuscitation, and care of the critically injured trauma patient. In his free time, he enjoys spending time with his family including his wife, three children, and multiple pets.