

Cynthia Reddick, RD, CNSC

Cynthia is a home tube feeding expert, educator and strategist having worked in homecare for 23 years passionately facilitating patients' successful transition from hospital to home on tube feeding. She works to promote positive clinical outcomes and believes a patient's positive relationship with their feeding tube impacts compliance and quality of life. She developed her passion for nutrition support interning at the City of Hope National Medical Center in Southern California. She enjoys presenting round tables, clinical posters, webinars, and case studies in the area of home care tube feeding and has been a guest speaker for the Oley Foundation, CMSA, NHIA, ASPEN and the Academy of Nutrition and Dietetics on a variety of topics related to home tube feeding.